Variations on this route/alternative activities:

1. At low tide it may be possible to cycle back to Cudmirrah along the beach. From the Monument, follow the walking track north, find your way across the rocks (difficult in places) and onto the beach. After approximately 1 km, cross Berrara Creek, cycle through the Caravan Park, and follow the coast to Collier Dr and back to Swan Lake. Total return distance is only about 5 kms.

A short but challenging mountain bike ride which explores the coastal forests south of Sussex Inlet. There are a number of creeks. The crossings and other parts of the track can be difficult. You visit the bay where the "Walter Hood" was wrecked in 1870, with thirteen people lost. Do not venture into the area in wet weather – the creeks quickly fill and the clay soil makes for very difficult cycling.
