Windstorm Waste Disposal.

With numerous amounts of green waste debris scattered all over the City of Shoalhaven following last weekends violent winds, Council's Waste Services have addressed the major concerns of waste disposal for the community.

David Hojem Manager of Waste Services at Shoalhaven City Council said that council is responding to the situation by opening tips in outlying areas today and tomorrow to allow residents to begin the clean up process.

Mr Hojem has also announced that all green waste can be delivered and deposited to Shoalhaven tips at no charge. Any green waste debris on council's road reserves will be collected and disposed of by council.

With services continuing to return to normal, Shoalhaven City Mayor Clr. Paul Green has again thanked the combined efforts of emergency services and operations, as well as council staff for their prompt and professional response to the weekends major wind events. "All agencies and organisations have been attending to this situation in a commendable manner, and working together to achieve the best outcome for the people in this community."
