Our Community's Plan for the Future

Leading the City's planning hierarchy, identifies the community's main priorities and expectations for the future and ways to achieve these goals.

What should be the future direction of Council? What are the community's key priorities and how would you like your rates to be spent? These are questions that Council is currently asking our community as part of the review of our key planning document - the Community Strategic Plan.

We are seeking your involvement in the creation of this plan and encourage you to head to our Get Involved page to have your say on the future of the Shoalhaven.

Get to know your Council

Shoalhaven City Council is made up of a Mayor and twelve Councillors. We introduced the newly elected Council in the last edition of the newsletter.

Your Councillors work on behalf of the Shoalhaven community to guide the development of local policies, set service standards and priorities, and monitor the performance of Council.

What is the role of a Councillor?

Councillors have a number of different roles, including acting as representatives, legislators, decision makers, strategists, mediators and financial overseers. Often, Councillors are required to perform many of these roles at the same time, which can be compared to wearing multiple hats at once.

For example, if Council has to decide on a particular planning matter, a Councillor may need to meet with residents who are concerned about the application (wearing their representative hat). They may also have to chair a consultation meeting about the application (mediator hat), and then sit as a member of the responsible authority or committee to make a decision according to the details of the application and whether it meets Council's planning requirements (judicial and administrative hats).

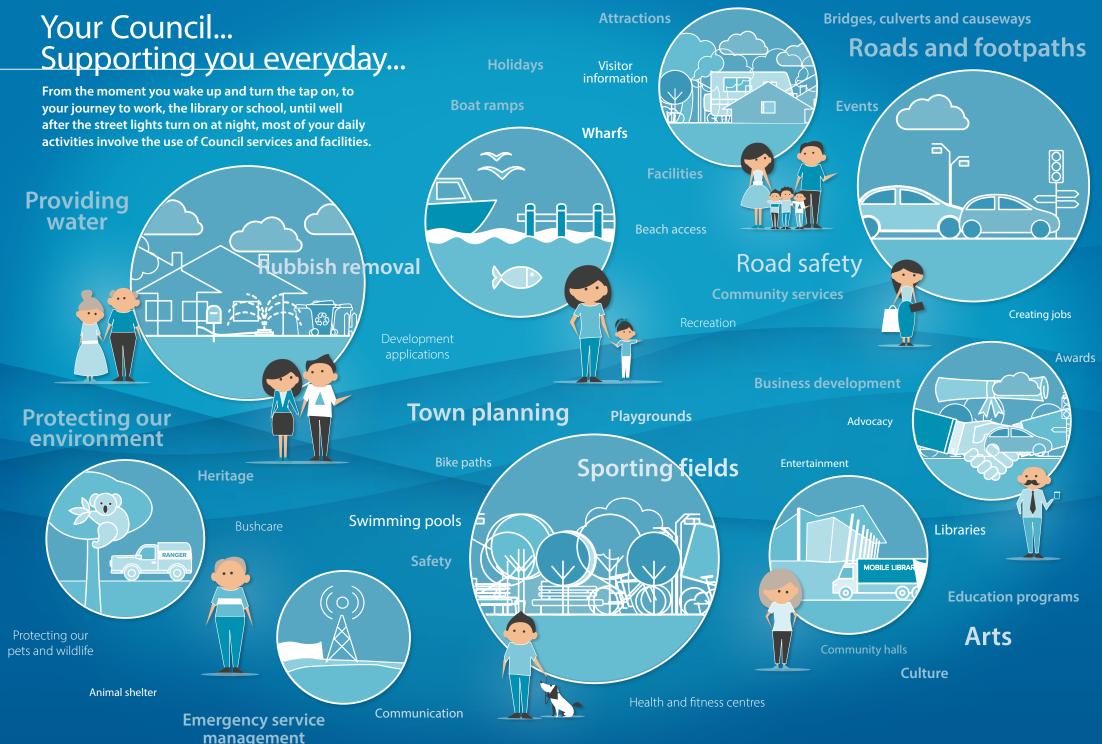

Given their many roles, it can be a challenge for Councillors to balance the diverse interests of their constituents (the residents who voted them in) with the best interests of the City as a whole.

As your local representatives, Councillors are your advocate for your community's priorities, projects and plans.
