Shoalhaven Water's Director Carmel Krogh has confirmed that with no rain on the horizon, the Shoalhaven is quickly heading towards its first restriction on water since February 2010.

Level one water restrictions are just weeks away with Shoalhaven Water preparing to turn off pumps shortly.

The Shoalhaven's main storage supply at Bamarang is an off-creek storage dam and is reliant on water being pumped from Burrier to maintain its capacity and when the pumps are turned off at Burrier the Shoalhaven is reliant on the current dam capacity. When the level of water in Bamarang Dam starts to decline, the next level of water restrictions is implemented.

Council recently hosted the Shoalhaven Developer's Forum, a proactive approach on how Council, developers and development consultants can work together to create efficient development processes and learn from each other.

The Shoalhaven Developers Forum was arranged by the Urban Development Institute of Australia's Southern Chapter and provided an interactive face to face approach for Council and development industry representatives to investigating ways the development process can be streamlined and receive updates on a range or relevant matters.

The Forum included topics such as an update on Shoalhaven Water infrastructure, home ownership development process, the Nowra CBD Building Heights and Urban Design Controls, the Cities Power Partnership and biodiversity reforms. Read more

Collaboration the key to streamlining development

Waste Depots Closed on Labour Day

New operating hours at Council's waste facilities were implemented on 1 July 2017, which included closure of all facilities on Public Holidays. Labour Day on Monday, 2 October will be the first public holiday since these changes.

Kerb side collection services will operate as normal.

The October long weekend also starts Council's public rubbish collection peak season.

Additional bins at parks and amenities have been placed in expected demand areas initially and will be rolled out into other location as the summer holidays get closer. Collection trucks will be operating on a scheduled route every day.

Council is partnering with the NSW Police to combat anti-social behaviour at the Shoalhaven Water Danjera Dam facility at Yalwal over the long weekend.

This follows a similar campaign which was conducted over the Easter weekend when the NSW Police and Council's Ranger Services were in attendance.

During the October Labour Day weekend, the NSW Police will be targeting the unauthorised use of motorbikes and anti-social behavior with the RBT initiative part of this campaign.

The destruction of trees, lack of camp ground etiquette and the killing of fauna are ongoing issues that Council is attempting to overcome to allow ongoing enjoyment by responsible users and families of this popular destination.
